

ARAYA

Forbes
THE COOLEST
RESTAURANTS FOR 2026

STRAITSTIMES
THE BEST NEW
FINE-DINING RESTAURANT

A personal culinary odyssey where
Chilean heritage meets Japanese precision.

Brought to life in Singapore at the world's only MICHELIN-starred Chilean restaurant.

ARAYA reflects the soulful journeys of Chefs Francisco Araya and Fernanda Guerrero through Chile, Japan and beyond. Here, South American and Japanese ingredients come together with exceptional technique and heartfelt hospitality, guided by deep respect for provenance, seasonality and the stories behind each flavour.

Awards & Recognition

Within eight months of opening, ARAYA was awarded its first MICHELIN Star — becoming the world's first Chilean restaurant to receive this distinction. More than an accolade, it was a deeply emotional milestone: a recognition of the passion, precision, and personal storytelling woven into everything we do.

Since then, ARAYA has been honoured with a growing collection of international recognition, each award marking a defining chapter in our continuing story.

Chef Francisco Araya

Francisco honed his craft in some of the world's most influential kitchens, including Mugaritz, Boragó and the legendary elBulli. At just 29, he earned his first MICHELIN star with the opening of 81 Restaurant in Tokyo.

ARAYA marks the realisation of a long-held dream — a space where heritage, experience and creative vision converge in their purest form. A celebration of Chilean identity that has remained close to his heart throughout his years abroad.

Chef Fernanda Guerrero

Fernanda brings warmth and personality to pastry, crafting breads and desserts that evoke a deep sense of place and memory. She began in her family's restaurant in Chile, before refining her craft at acclaimed kitchens including Alegre and NAPA Wine Bar & Kitchen — formative experiences that helped shape her thoughtful and expressive style.

At ARAYA, her creations speak softly yet powerfully, rooted in tradition, elevated with technique, and always guided by heart.

The Restaurant

ARAYA's sweeping main dining hall transports guests to the dramatic landscapes of Chile, expressed through striking ombré tones. Designed by Emma Maxwell and inspired by Chilean geography, the space deepens the storytelling and atmosphere of the dining experience.

An intimate 16-seat rose-quartz counter draws diners closer to the chefs and their craft, offering a rare glimpse into the ingredients, ideas and influences behind ARAYA's distinct dishes.

Patagonia Private Dining Room

With its breathtaking hand-painted mural of the Andes, this private room is truly reimagined. A solid quartzite table anchors the space, while overhead, a delicate porcelain light fixture floats like drifting clouds, draping the room in a seductive glow.

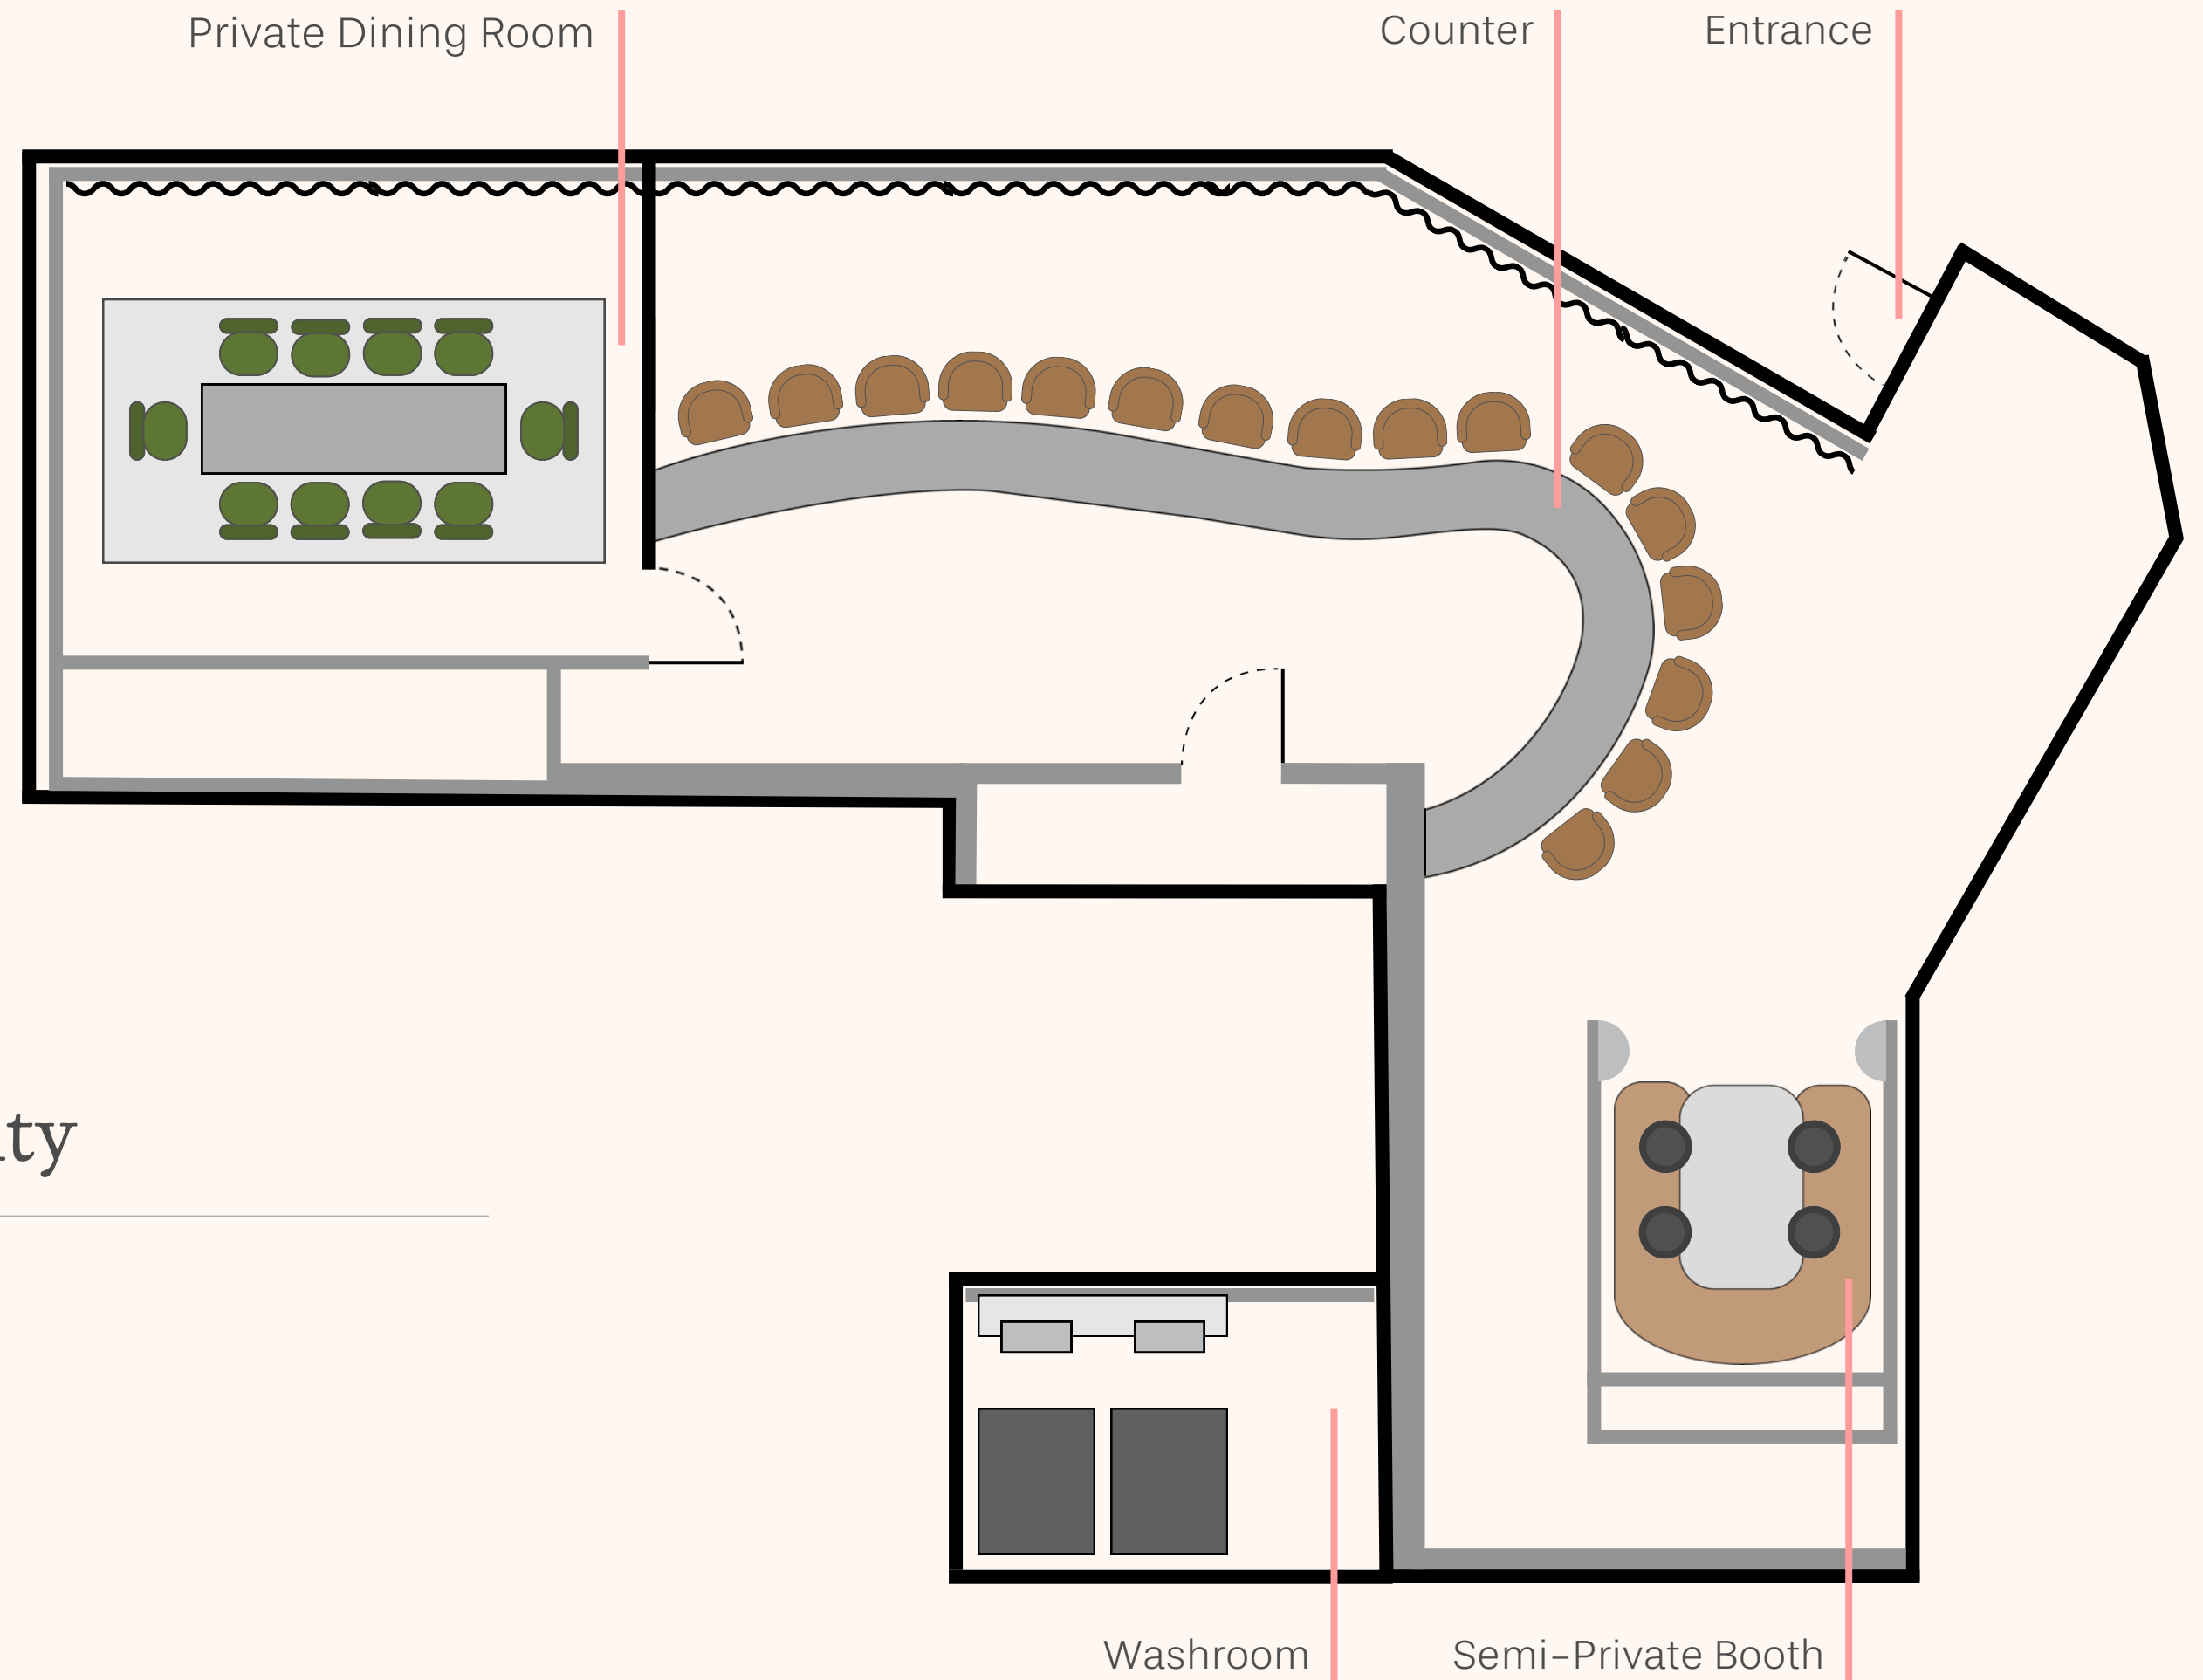

The perfect setting to enjoy the ARAYA experience in blissful privacy.

Semi-Private Booth

A circular table tucked away near the entrance of ARAYA, the semi-private seating offers a touch of seclusion while remaining close to the action. Still within view of the glowing rose quartz counter and the main dining hall, the booth is ideal for personal or business conversations that require a little more privacy.
